

Under-occupation

The current B-with-us policy gives high priority to applicants who are “under-occupying” their property. This means they are already living in social housing with a secure tenancy, and are in a home with more bedrooms than they require (such as a single person living in a three bedroom property).

The new policy aims to ensure that social housing is allocated to those applicants who have the most urgent need, therefore those who are already living in social housing but need fewer bedrooms will be given less priority (see the highlighted changes in the table below).

The benefit of this is that the social housing allocated through B-with-us will be given to those who need it, rather than those who are already living in social housing with a non-urgent need to move.

The risk of this is that some applicants who are currently active on the B-with-us housing register with a high priority will have their priority reduced.

The table below shows the bands in the current policy, where the equivalent item is in the new policy, and a description of the change.
